Governor Gets Tax Bill Out of Special Session

By CHARLES E. CHAPEL
 assemblyman, 46th District.
 The regular session of the California State Legislature officially ended at midnight Friday, June 18, 1965. Actually, it was well past midnight and early in the morning of Saturday, June 19, before we journeyed. I went home but had to fly back (by Western Airlines) to sit in conferences and attend hearings the following Monday.
 Day after day, we expected that the Governor would call us into special session, but more hearings were held by the Governor on the fourth floor of the wing in which our offices are located the same floor on which my office, Room 4001, is located. All these conferences and hearings related to the fact that the budget bill, passed to the Governor, was far in excess of the revenues coming to the State by means of taxation. Finally, we were called into special session on Friday, June 25, one week after the official last day of the regular session. In the Assembly, of which I have been a member for nearly 15 years, only two committees were constituted. These were the Rules Committee and the Committee on Revenue and Taxation, of which I have been a member continuously since I was first given the oath of office in January, 1951. Curiously enough, this committee meets regularly in Room 4202, on the same floor as my office. We sat in committee day after day, and night after night, hearing all kinds and types of bills. Both in committee and on the floor of the Assembly, I voted NO on every bill creating a new tax or increasing an existing tax.

 A TAX BILL, adopted in special session last week, was sent to the Governor which included new taxes and higher old taxes. Needless to say, I voted against it, along with 24 other men, a few of whom are Democrats.
 Many Members of the Assembly who are Democrats told me privately that they did not like to vote for taxes which will arouse the fury of their constituents but had to vote as they did for fear of reprisals. They did not specify what these reprisals were. Other Democrats told me that they thought that many of the votes for the swollen budget and expanded tax program were motivated either by the hope of reward or the fear of punishment.
 There were several Republicans who voted for the tremendous budget and for the many bad tax bills. They merely grinned like a parrot attended by Republican Assemblymen. The Republican State Senators have not bothered to come near us. I hardly blame them. They are busy worrying about how the federal judges will reapportion them.

 In this report to the people, I have referred to the first special session because many people in our State Government are convinced that it will be necessary for the Governor to call us back into at least one more special session in 1965 in order to unravel some of the mistakes made during the regular session and the first special session. Under the Constitution of California, any Governor has the absolute right to call the entire Legislature into special session at any time he pleases. I have seen this happen when Earl Warren was Governor of California, while Goodwin

Course on Bill of Rights Offered for Area Teachers

The Bill of Rights will be the subject of a UCLA extension course for teachers to be taught this summer at Victor Elementary School, Torrance.
 "An Interdisciplinary Approach to the Teaching of the Bill of Rights: Due Process of Law" will be offered for all area teachers beginning July 12 from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. daily for two weeks in the school auditorium, 4820 Spencer St.
 Objectives of the course are how the teacher can best help students understand the theory, practice, and responsibilities of citizenship. Emphasis will be on case materials relating to free speech, assembly and equal treatment before the law in questions and situations involving civil rights. Recent court decisions and issues currently before the courts will be studied.
 Analyzing the meaning of each of the basic sections of the Bill of Rights will be distinguished educators, attorneys, and social scientists.
 Registration for all courses will be at the first class meeting.
 Bicycle accidents skyrocketed during the summer months, according to the Greater Los Angeles Chapter of the National Safety Council, and in four out of five cases the victim of the accident was violating a law or safety rule. Parents are urged by the Council to "safety check" the riding habits of their youngsters and to teach them the rules of safety.
